a) Course code and title: SOC 6550 Community Engaged Scholarship

b) Date of offering: Thursday, 2:30 – 5:30 p.m. (MCKN 119)

c) Department: Department of Sociology and Anthropology

d) Course Instructor: Mavis Morton

e) Course Description: Course Title: “The Principles and Practices of CES as a Sociologist”

This graduate course is open to any graduate student in sociology, anthropology or criminology/criminal justice interested in community engaged scholarship. It will focus on developing knowledge, skills and values related to the principles and practices of community engaged scholarship (CES) from a sociological perspective. CES involves mutually beneficial partnerships between academics and the community that results in the production of scholarship. We will review and apply the academic literature on CES and the scholarship of engagement in our collaboration with a community partner on a real problem/issue the community has identified. We will examine and apply the principles and best practices of community engagement, examine how this fits with public sociology, examine the literature on community engaged learning and work on learning outcomes including communication, critical thinking and problem solving, knowledge mobilization, teamwork, leadership

f) Course Format: Using a seminar format primarily, a portion of most classes will include teaching and learning strategies in which members of the seminar present and lead discussions. The use of guest lectures, print materials (e.g journal articles, D2L resources), multimedia (i.e. films, videos, music, PowerPoint etc.) will supplement discussions and lectures.

g) Assessment/Evaluation: Participation (25%); Community-Engaged Learning Project (50%); Knowledge Mobilization Product (25%)

h) Readings/resources:
   - D2L online resources TBA

Note: I reserve the right to make changes to the outline as posted and will provide a complete and binding course outline during the first class.