

Phil 1000-Introductory Philosophy: Major Texts Course Outline

Professor Patricia Sheridan
Office Hours: Mondays and Wednesdays, 11:00-12:00
Office: MacKinnon 335
Email: pmsherid@uoguelph.ca

This course will examine some of the most important and enduring thinkers in the history of Western philosophy. Although philosophers have grappled with a wide range of issues, this course will concentrate on two of the most fundamental questions that have concerned Western philosophers: “What is real?” and “How do humans have knowledge of reality?” Questions concerning the nature of reality are a branch of philosophy called metaphysics, and questions about human knowledge are a branch of philosophy called epistemology. Some of the questions that follow from these fundamental issues are: is there a world outside the mind, what can humans know about the world, what are we capable of knowing, and how do we attain fulfillment. The answers philosophers have given to these questions have shaped not only modern science, but modern conceptions of self. Ultimately, these questions deal with what it means to be human; how these questions all turn on this most fundamental issue is what this course aims to show.

Teaching Assistants: Office hours TBA

Required Text: From Plato to Derrida. 6th edition. Edited by Forrest Baird and Walter Kaufmann. Prentice Hall, 2008.

Evaluation:

Tutorial Questions*	12% (8 x 1.5%: best 8 out of 10)
2 two-page critical summaries	28% (2 x 14%)
Mid-term	25%
Final Exam*	35%

This course will be using Courselink. Please be sure to check the site throughout the term for course materials, powerpoints, and grades.

Tutorial Questions (12%) A specific question will be assigned to each tutorial session (these will be announced in class on Mondays and will be posted thereafter on our Courselink site). While the discussion at each tutorial may cover a range of issues and concerns, these assigned questions are intended to give you a jumping-off point for critically assessing the thinker or issue covered that week in the lectures. Your answers cannot be more than one page double-spaced, and must be at least ½ page double-spaced. There is no question due for the first tutorial (week of Sept. 8th)

Evaluation: Each tutorial question is worth 1.5 marks (and 1.5% of your course grade). You will receive a 1 on your question as long as it is clear that you've read the assigned text and made a serious attempt at answering the question. You can get .5 mark on your assignment, if you participate in the tutorial. Participation involves sharing your opinions, asking questions, etc. If you do participate in the tutorial discussion put a checkmark on the top right-hand corner of your assignment before handing it in to your TA. Assignments with checkmarks on them will receive 1.5 marks.

*N.B.: these marks are like participation marks. You cannot, therefore, get the marks if you miss a seminar. No late critical summaries will be accepted. If you miss the seminar, you lose the grades.
However, note that only the best 8 out of 10 count.

*Critical Summaries (2 x 14%): These are short 2-page papers, which aim to identify the central claim or argument of a piece of text and respond in some critical way to that claim or argument. A detailed instruction sheet will be distributed. A specific reading from the text will be announced in your tutorial two weeks before the assignment is due (The due weeks are as indicated in the course schedule below). The assignments must be handed in to your TA, in your tutorial. The critical summary must be handed in typed and double-spaced and be no more than two pages long. There is no late penalty, and no assignments will be accepted late unless you speak to me, Professor Sheridan. I will allow late assignments only on compassionate or medical grounds.

Mid-term test (25%): This will be an in-class test (50 minutes); essay format. One question will appear on the test and you will have 50 minutes to answer it. Date is listed below.
--if you are not able to write the test for medical or compassionate reasons, please come talk to me as early as possible.

Final exam (35%): This exam will be 2 hours long (room TBA); essay format. You will be given three essay questions, in class, in the last week of classes and two of them will appear in the exact same wording on the final exam. This exam will be cumulative of all material covered during the term, in class and in the seminars.
