PHIL 2600
Business and Professional Ethics

Winter Term 2013

Instructor: Reiner Schaefer
Email: Schaefer@uoguelph.ca
Office: MacKinnon 332 (office wing)
Office Hours: Tuesdays, Thursdays 12:30-1:30
(or by appointment)

DESCRIPTION:

Ethics is primarily the study of how we should live and act, and of what is good. Just as we can be mistaken in our views about topics in science and economics, we can also be mistaken in our views about how we should act and about what is good. Ethics is, therefore, a very important topic to anyone who wants to live a good life.

Business Ethics is the study of how one should act in the business world. Just as we can be mistaken about whether or not implementing some business initiative will be profitable, we can also be mistaken about whether or not implementing some business initiative is ethical (and sometimes there is a conflict between what is profitable and what is ethical).

The aim of this course is to provide you with some skills and knowledge that will help you make better ethical decisions within the business world. We will start by examining capitalism and different theories of distributive justice. We will then draw from these as we discuss some of the following topics:

- the responsibilities of businesses towards the environment.
- the responsibilities of businesses towards consumers (e.g., product safety, misleading advertising, ethical sales practices).
- the responsibilities of employees to employers (e.g., loyalty and whistle-blowing).
- the responsibilities of businesses to society more generally

REQUIRED TEXT:

*Each student will need to bring his or her own textbook to some of the tests (midterms and exams). During these tests you will not be allowed to share textbooks, use photocopies of the textbook, and no text books will be provided for students who (for whatever reason) do not have one. Make sure that you have the correct edition!

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Midterm: 20%
First Essay: 25%
Final Essay: 25%
Final Exam: 30%

-------------

COURSE POLICIES

Late Assignments:
Late assignments will be penalized 5% per day that it is late, unless accompanied by appropriate official documentation (eg. medical documentation about your having a medical illness serious enough to prevent you from completing an assignment). Assignments handed in on the same day that they are due, but after the time that they are due are considered one day late. Computer problems do not constitute a legitimate reason for lateness. See “When You Cannot Meet a Course Requirement” in the College of Arts & Standards Statements (below).

Classroom Etiquette:

-Be respectful of the views of classmates that differ from your own.

-To minimize the extent to which your actions will distract me and your classmates:
  -Do not arrive to class late. It is very distracting for everyone.
  -During lecture you may only use electronic note-taking devices (such as computers or tablets) for taking notes. No watching movies, playing games, looking at pictures etc.
  -Pack away and turn off all smart phones before class begins. No texting or using social media during class.
  -Don’t have private conversations during lectures (unless instructed otherwise).

-Students who are excessively disrespectful or distracting in lecture will be asked to leave.
