1.2 Course Description

This course looks at the Renaissance in Italy as a period of intense artistic innovation fueled by discoveries (and rediscoveries) about the science of representation and the intellectual current of humanism. Rather than presenting a traditional chronology, the course is centered on themes in Italian Renaissance art; from cathedrals to courts, from birth to death, from weddings to funerals, from gods to monsters; the range of human experience expressed in art against a backdrop of intense intellectual and humanist revolution fueled by the printing press. We'll look at painting, sculpture, architecture, prints and printing, textiles, ceramics, jewelry-making and other forms of cultural production that help us to think about the past in new ways.

3 Learning Resources

3.1 Required Resources

Weekly readings are available via Courselink (Readings)
The readings supplement the lecture content and are required.

Italian Renaissance Learning Resources (Website)
http://www.italianrenaissanceresources.com/
Website created by National Gallery of Art, Washington, available through Courselink

3.2 Additional Resources

Any available textbook on the history of Italian Renaissance Art (Readings)
You can find a variety of illustrated texts at the university library that you might find helpful to supplement your studies in this course. While these are useful for the images, keep in mind that the older the book, the more out-of-date the information will be in terms of reflecting current interpretive, contextual and theoretical discourses in art history.

4 Learning Outcomes

4.1 Course Learning Outcomes

By the end of this course, you should be able to:

1. Evaluate the aesthetic, historical, social, and ethical significance of the visual realm that underlies our understanding of the Italian Renaissance.
2. Construct plausible methods of analysis in the field of art history and visual culture.
3. Develop a broader and deeper understanding of how visual images inflect and change our understanding of historical events.
4. Identify the major debates that have shaped the discipline of art history and visual culture and situate methodologies and approaches within or without these historiographical contexts.

5 Teaching and Learning Activities

5.1 Lecture

Topics: The professor is an expert on the material, and the lectures are organized by theme to highlight key concepts. Attending class (for W21, Lectures are online) and taking good notes can help you to put the ideas together and focus on what’s important. Nothing can explain ideas better than another person can. The lectures convey content, shape your understanding of art history as a discipline with its own distinct structures of cognition, and provide you with methods and means to assimilate information and model your own evolving expertise on the subject.

6 Assessments

6.1 Assessment Details

Mid-term Exam (20%)
Date: Mon, Feb 6, In-class
The format of the test will be explained in class

The Palazzo Project (35%)
Due: Wed, Mar 15
In this project, students will design and furnish a room in a Renaissance palazzo, with objects chosen from museum collections that would be typical of the period, and that speak to a specific Renaissance family in terms of their iconography. In other words, students will contextualize art, artifacts, architecture and other objects to demonstrate their understanding of Renaissance visual culture. Details will be given out in class.

Final Exam (30%)
Date: Date TBA
The format of the exam will be discussed in class.

The Impresa Project (15%)
Date: Mon, Jan 30
An impresa is the combination of a "device" (a symbolic image) with a "motto" (a short sentence or phrase chosen as encapsulating the beliefs or ideals guiding an individual, family, or institution). The impresa became an important marker of identity in the Renaissance, and they were found chiefly on medals circulated to enhance reputation and fame. In this assignment, students will be asked to research and identify an actual Renaissance ‘impresa’ and then to create their own impresa, based on their own name or on an imaginary Renaissance figure. Details will be given in class.

The University promotes the full participation of students who experience disabilities in their academic programs. To that end, the provision of academic accommodation is a shared responsibility between the University and the student.

When accommodations are needed, the student is required to first register with Student Accessibility Services (SAS). Documentation to substantiate the existence of a disability is required; however, interim accommodations may be possible while that process is underway.

Accommodations are available for both permanent and temporary disabilities. It should be noted that common illnesses such as a cold or the flu do not constitute a disability.

Use of the SAS Exam Centre requires students to make a booking at least 14 days in advance, and no later than November 1 (fall), March 1 (winter) or July 1 (summer). Similarly, new or changed accommodations for online quizzes, tests and exams must be approved at least a week ahead of time.

For Guelph students, information can be found on the SAS website

7.6 Academic Integrity

The University of Guelph is committed to upholding the highest standards of academic integrity, and it is the responsibility of all members of the University community-faculty, staff, and students-to be aware of what constitutes academic misconduct and to do as much as possible to prevent academic offences from occurring. University of Guelph students have the responsibility of abiding by the University's policy on academic misconduct regardless of their location of study; faculty, staff, and students have the responsibility of supporting an environment that encourages academic integrity. Students need to remain aware that instructors have access to and the right to use electronic and other means of detection.

Please note: Whether or not a student intended to commit academic misconduct is not relevant for a finding of guilt. Hurried or careless submission of assignments does not excuse students from responsibility for verifying the academic integrity of their work before submitting it. Students who are in any doubt as to whether an action on their part could be Construed as an academic offence should consult with a faculty member or faculty advisor.
