COURSE OUTLINE

Prerequisite: GREK*1100.

Please note: This is a preliminary web course description only. The department reserves the right to change without notice any information in this description. The final, binding course outline will be distributed on the first day of the semester.

Since the W 2020 term was a bit of chaos for everyone on campus, this course will begin with a serious review of the material covered in GREK*1100 and then continue with Athenaze Vol. 1, perhaps getting to the end of the book by December.

This course will be delivered synchronously three times per week since it is important that you maintain pace with the material being covered. The learning of any language is a progressive and incremental process. Hence the need for regular exposure to the language and consistent review of the work completed.

Course objectives:

- 1)to continue to introduce students to the language of Classical Greece, in particular to the basic principles of grammar and syntax in an inflected language
- 2)to continue to provide a basic vocabulary for the reading of introductory Greek texts
- 3)to continue to demonstrate that much of modern English vocabulary is derived from Greek
- 4)to continue introduce students to the culture that provides the foundation for Western civilization.

Required Text:

Athenaze: An Introduction to Ancient Greek Book I, M. Balme and G. Lawall (Oxford U.P.) 3rd Edition.

Evaluation:

Weekly quizzes:	30%
Homework and participation:	20%
