TRUN

Transborder Research-University Network
Call for Proposals

The University of Guelph is a founding member of the new Transborder Research-University Network along with seven universities in southern Ontario: Queen’s University, University of Toronto, McMaster University, York University, University of Waterloo and the University of Western Ontario, and six in upstate New York: University at Buffalo-SUNY, Cornell University, University of Rochester, Rochester Institute of Technology, Syracuse University and the University at Albany-SUNY. The Network’s website is www.trun.ca.

Each member institution has agreed to make available $5000 per year as seed money for projects involving other universities in the Network. The scope is intended to be as inclusive as possible: projects are therefore welcomed which will contribute to the advancement of any aspect of Guelph University’s international agenda, including teaching/curriculum, research, and the student experience – or indeed they might integrate two or more of these aspects. Proposals must involve at least one of the member institutions from New York, and preferably other TRUN members as well.

Proposals should be submitted as a letter of intent, comprising a maximum of two pages describing the project, with a preliminary budget attached.
