Our Mission

Time spent learning in nature has been shown to have dramatic benefits for children's social, psychological and physical functioning. Through this learning program led by our Registered Early Childhood Educators, we aim to help children develop a lasting and meaningful relationship with nature that will help them become stewards of the environment.

It can be especially impactful for children to develop a deeper relationship with nature during the colder months when we are often outside less. Winter weather can offer more opportunities for creative thinking, varied body movements, new challenges and complex problem-solving.
