Brand Manager, New Business Development
Tree of Life Canada

Emily graduated with distinction from Cornell University's School of Hotel Administration. After graduating she worked in commercial kitchen design where she was involved in a number of projects ranging from healthcare to hotels. From there she went on to work in the head office of Imago Restaurants and was involved in numerous operations and marketing projects. Presently she works at Tree of Life Canada, one of Canada's largest specialty and natural food distributors, as a Brand Manager in New Business Development. There she manages a national brand and reviews potential new products.
