Healthy Volunteers Needed!

For the study titled “Serological biomarker discovery, verification and validation to diagnose and monitor disease”.

Want to get involved and contribute to tomorrow’s medicine? The University of Guelph is in need of healthy men and women over the age of 40 to participate in a human health study. The purpose of the study is to identify disease-specific biomarkers to improve detection and monitoring of various chronic diseases.

Participants will be required to:

- Complete an online or phone screening questionnaire to determine eligibility
- Come for a one-hour study visit at the University of Guelph, at which you will be asked to complete a medical history questionnaire and provide a blood sample.

COMPENSATION: Draw for 1 of 4 $50 Starbucks or Metro Gift cards. Four participant names will be drawn upon completion of this study. With approximately 100 participants in the study, each participant has a 4% chance of winning.
