Human Resources Consultants

The HR Consultants are available to provide strategic, forward-thinking consultation to help the colleges and departmental leaders and their units with a range of human resource matters. Each University of Guelph college and department or unit has a Consultant assigned to it. The Consultants work diligently to understand departmental needs and objectives so they can advise on programs and practices that can support departmental requirements.

HR Consultants work closely with Human Resource Specialists and are supported by the Consulting Assistants to assist university organizations in the following ways:

- Advising departments on university policies, procedures and best practices.
- Interpreting collective agreements.
- Adapting and implementing G.O.A.L – University of Guelph’s performance planning, assessment and development program that will support your mission.
- Providing advice and potential solutions to employee relations and work climate issues.
- Reviewing organizational structure. Once a department has identified and defined a structure, the HR Consultant can help outline and recommend how to achieve desired outcomes.
- Serving as a recruitment and selection advisement and resource.
- Providing consultation on job design and structure, reviewing and analyzing banding requests, and making recommendations based upon established criteria.
