

Fall 2020 Application Form - BIOL*2300 Sec 01 - Field Course in Biodiversity

Field Course in Biodiversity, (BIOL*2300 01) will take place at the Canadian High Arctic Research Station (CHARS) in Cambridge Bay located on Victoria Island in the Kitikmeot Region of Nunavut. This field course will take place from approximately June 15th - June 28th. Space in this section of the field course is limited and any interested student is required to submit the following application form, an unofficial transcript and their resume to sjacobs04@uoguelph.ca by February 4th, 2020.

A. Student Information

Name:	Email Address:
Student I.D.:	Major:
Current Cumulative Average:	Total Credits Completed:

Please check that you have read the CHARS field course information sheet including the course fees information and agree to the terms

If I am not initially accepted for this experience I would like to be added to the waitlist

C. Statement of Impact: In the space provided please describe why you are interested in participating in this field course and how this experience will contribute to your overall academic and personal goals.

Please indicate any past relevant experience that you may draw on for this experience.