PSYC*3000 Historical and Critical Perspectives on Psychology

Course Outline - Fall 2019

Course description

The purpose of this course is to help students understand the socio-historical and theoretical context of modern psychological research and practice. This includes: 1) evaluating basic assumptions underlying modern psychology by drawing on historical, theoretical and philosophical perspectives, and 2) investigating historical and current controversies within psychology. Topics may include the question of psychology’s universality and scientific status, the assumptions embedded in psychological theory and research methodology, the history of madness and psychotherapy, and the relations between psychology, power, ethics, and politics.

Course learning objectives

1. Identify key theoretical and methodological assumptions underlying psychological research and practice, and explain how these assumptions shape and constrain psychological knowledge. (Psychology LOs: 1.1, 1.2, 1.3, 1.4, 2.1, 3.1, 3.3)

2. Understand how knowledge of psychology’s history can help to make sense of its assumptions, limitations and strengths. (Psychology LOs: 3.2)

3. Analyse, evaluate, and reflect on these issues in relation to your own interests in psychology (Psychology LOs: 1.1, 1.2, 1.3, 1.4, 5.2, 5.3)

4. Express your ideas effectively through participating in class/seminar discussions and written responses to readings and lecture material. (Psychology LOs: 4.1, 4.2, 4.3, 4.4)

5. Demonstrate appropriate academic independence, personal organization, and time management in completing assigned course tasks. (Psychology LOs: 5.5)

Additional Notes:

Reflection papers (9x7%) 63%
You are expected to submit 9 reflection papers over the course of the semester. Reflection papers are due on Tuesdays by 5pm (see the schedule below).

Guidelines for reflection papers
The main aim of the reflection papers is to provide you with a written means of engaging with the readings and class discussions. Reflection papers are written in response to readings and class discussions that have already taken place, and are submitted the following week.

There is no strict rule for how to write your papers, as long as they reflect an attempt to critically and creatively engage with, and make sense of, the ideas and topics raised for the week. For example, you can write about links between history, theoretical ideas and personal life experiences; you can reflect on connections between course content and ideas in other courses you are taking, or in other disciplines; or you can engage with course material on its own terms, using theory and philosophical concepts from the readings and other parts of the course. If your opinion about an issue changes during the course, you can write about this in a reflection paper. In later papers, you may also want to explore broader themes that appear to link the course topics together.

The reflection papers are meant to be part of an ongoing reflection on new and sometimes complex ideas, and you can expect that your ideas about things will change as the course progresses. This means that your papers can be exploratory. Be aware, however, that your TAs and I will look for evidence that you have actually read the course material when grading your papers.

Format for submissions:
- APA referencing is not required, but necessary if you want to cite other materials
- Length is 600 – 900 words (2 – 3 double spaced pages)
- Quality is more important than quantity!
- Submissions need to be electronic via the CourseLink dropbox (please double check that your file has uploaded)
- Use any of the following file formats: .doc, .docx, .pdf, .rtf.

Late penalties:
- 10% subtracted for each day late up to a maximum of 3 days (after that assignments receive an automatic zero)

Other:
- If you miss class for legitimate reasons (e.g., illness) you will still need to submit a reflection paper.

Mid-term exam (take home) 17%
In Week 7 of the course (23rd and 25th October) you will write a mid-term take-home exam. Using Courselink, the exam question(s) will be given to you at 8:00am on Oct 23rd, and the completed exam is due on Oct 25th by 5:00pm.

Exam format
The exam will be essay-based, in which you will respond to questions asking you to take stock of and integrate what you have learned so far in the course. Your exam response should be no longer than 1000 words. You are free to consult your readings, notes, class discussions, reflection papers and additional research to answer the exam questions. While you may discuss the exam with your classmates, your exam response must be your own. We will be on the lookout for plagiarism. There will be no classes that week, but your TAs will be available for consultation in MAC149 on Oct 23rd during regular class time.
Participation in discussions 20%

You will be assessed on the quality of meaningful engagement in class discussions. If a student has not contributed sufficiently for a grade to be allocated, I may call on them to give an oral presentation in class. I expect students to attend every class, except in the case of emergencies, and to come prepared to discuss the assigned readings.

Guidelines for class discussion

Class discussions are the main component of this course. Their main purpose is to provide an opportunity to explore ideas and to clarify your understanding of course material. For this reason, it is to be expected that you will change your mind, perhaps several times, on topics and issues in the course. Your discussion grade is not based on whether you agree or disagree with the course readings or with others in your class, but on the ways in which you are able to do so respectfully, coherently and reflexively.

Academic Misconduct

The University of Guelph is committed to upholding the highest standards of academic integrity and it is the responsibility of all members of the University community, faculty, staff, and students to be aware of what constitutes academic misconduct and to do as much as possible to prevent academic offences from occurring.
University of Guelph students have the responsibility of abiding by the University's policy on academic misconduct regardless of their location of study; faculty, staff and students have the responsibility of supporting an environment that discourages misconduct. Students need to remain aware that instructors have access to and the right to use electronic and other means of detection. Please note: Whether or not a student intended to commit academic misconduct is not relevant for a finding of guilt. Hurried or careless submission of assignments does not excuse students from responsibility for verifying the academic integrity of their work before submitting it. Students who are in any doubt as to whether an action on their part could be construed as an academic offence should consult with a faculty member or faculty advisor.

The Academic Misconduct Policy is detailed in the Undergraduate Calendar: Academic Misconduct Policy

Accessibility

The University of Guelph is committed to creating a barrier-free environment. Providing services for students is a shared responsibility among students, faculty and administrators. This relationship is based on respect of individual rights, the dignity of the individual and the University community's shared commitment to an open and supportive learning environment. Students requiring service or accommodation, whether due to an identified, ongoing disability or a short-term disability should contact Student Accessibility Services as soon as possible.
