SOC 1100: SOCIOLOGY (Sections 01 and 02)
Instructor: Dr. Deanna Behnke-Cook
Office: TBA
Email Address: dbehnkec@uoguelph.ca

COURSE SYLLABUS

Objectives:
This course should help students develop a deeper understanding of the behaviour of individuals and groups in a social context. Although the concepts, theories and methods of the discipline will be introduced and discussed within a global context, particular emphasis will be placed upon the dynamics of Canadian society. Students will be encouraged to look at more or less familiar phenomena from new perspectives and in comparative contexts.

The course content will provide an overview of the discipline of sociology as well as an introduction to various areas of specialization found in most North American sociology departments. Students should come away from this course with an appreciation of how powerful social forces can be, and how they shape how we choose to behave, what we believe, and how we relate to one another.

Format:
This course will include two classes each week for Section 01 (Tuesdays and Thursdays 10:00-11:20 am, in THRN 1200), and 1 class each week for Section 02, (Mondays 7-9:50 pm, in RÖZH 104) involving lectures, videos, and discussion. In addition, students are required to complete five online tutorials on Courselink.

Assessment:
midterm test 30 %
online tutorials 25 %
final exam 45 %

Note that the midterm and final, which will be based on classroom and text materials, will include multiple choice and true/false questions. (Lectures, required readings, and films are weighted equally.)

Text: